Astrology is from the

. Presupposeth Astronomy and Natural Philosophy, and not impugns by Scripture nor Canons, and it was all one with Astronomy in former times, confessed so to be by Anatomists, and never seperated till the Adversaries pretended to controul what they understood not.

Lewis Ridemin Triumphs why should they not? So long as they can escape the Pillage for. But when that is gone, the Jews of Barbary Leave, will all be fools, till all your stores spent.

Aſtronomy is but of ſmall uſe without Aſtrologie, for to what end ſhould we know the Diſtances, motions, Aſpects and Conjunctions of the Stars, if when we do know them they have no effect? Jn may be: replied, they ſerve to Diſtinguiſh Times and Seaſons, &c. I anſwer, that is abſurd, for if that had been the only end, the ſame and More would have performed that, and there had been no need of the other five Planets and Fixed Stars.

Sometimes the negligence of the Astrologer is the cause of Errour, not is there any Art free from controversie, and how then should Astrology escape? That the stars have Influence is proved from Scripture as improved in Job; yet they alter not the species of things, nor induce Necessity, nor take away the Government of God or Angels, nor effect Miracles, nor Religion, &c.

Of the Eclipses of the Luminaries Which happen this Year 1694.

THERE will be four Eclipses of the Luminaries this Year, viz. two of the Sun, and as many of the Moon, they fall in this order following.

The First will be an Eclipse of the Moon upon New years day about noon, but Invisible to us though a great defect to our Antipodes.

The Second will be of the Sun, upon June the 12 near 5 in the afternoon, and may be seen at London and all England, if the Air be clear.

The Third will be an Eclipse of the Moon, June the 26 a little after midnight, and may be seen tho but a small Defect by those that will observe it.

The Fourth and Last is to be of the Sun, December the 6 near 5 at Night, but cannot be seen by us, and therefore there needs no more be said of it.

THE Spring Quarter Begins this year according to some Authors March the 10 near 2 in the morning, but more exactly at 6 m. after 3 as is hereafter expressed.

The Summer Quarter Commenceth June the 11 at 2^h 35^m in the morning.

The Autumnal Quarter takes beginning September the 12 at 2^h 40^m past 7 afternoon.

And the Winter Quarter Begins December the 11, 4^m past 7 in the morning 1694.

Of the Spring Quarter.

THE Spring Quarter Commences this Year, March the 19th about 3 in the Morning, at which time I find about 19 degrees of Scorpio culminating, and 13 of Capricorn Ascending, at which time the Sun and Mercury with their Quadrat Aspect to Saturn, and to Jupiter also; Saturn is in 3 degrees of Capricorn and Jove in about 29 degrees of Cancer, both in their own Dignities, Mars in Cancer, Venus in Taurus and Mercury in Aries, the Moon declines from the opposition of Jove and is in Opposition to Mars, and thus stands the position of Heaven at the Suns Entrance into the Sign Aries, which to me appears not so favourable as I could wish, but what may be deduced from those Configurations will doubtless be considered as Judge by such of our Annual Writers, that take more Room to breath out their conceptions concerning Generall Accidents of the world; here being no Room to handle such matters so compleatly as they ought to be, to which I shall rather refer the Reader, then make an Impertinent Judgment in this place. And present him with a useful Discourse of Light, Heat, Cold, Rain in Direct parts of the Earth, or Zones, and other properties thereof, viz. (1.) The more or less, or no Obliquity of the Rays of the Sun coming to or Reflected on any place. For the Rays falling perpendicular on any place cause great heat, and the other Rays [not falling perpendicular] or rather sliding Obliquely, have for that Reason a less power of heating, by how much the Obliquity of them is the greater, they by how much the more they decline from the Perpendicular Rays. (2.) The Diurnal stay of the Sun above the Horizon of the place. For the same heat maketh more hot, and changeth the Air in a longer time, than in a shorter. (3.) The Depression of the Sun beneath the Horizon being more or less in the Night Season. For this Difference of Depression causeth that either more or less light is perceived in the Air, also more or less Heat, Rain, Thick Clouds, and hitherto belongeth the Twilight. (4.) The more or less clearing of the Moon above the Horizon, the more or less depression of the same beneath the Horizon; the more or less Diurnal help of the sunne above the Horizon. The Causes are the same in him there alledg'd as in the 3 foregoing Paragraphs.

(5.) The same may be said of the Fixed Stars, especially those of the entire Noted ones, and of the Five other Planets Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Venus, Mercury, for they do generate some light and Heat in the Air, although it be but little, and change the Air divers ways, also raise vapours, if we may credit the Report of Paracelsus. (6.) The property of species of the Earth of every place, for where the Earth is more Stony and Rocky, there for the most part it is most cold, or at least more cold than where it is Sulphurous and Fat, and here again it is more Fertile, and where there is much Sand and no Rivers, there is greater heat. (7.) Lakes or the Sea adjacent. From thence also Fumes and Mists are Raised, more Moist and Pregnant in the Air, and the Rales are less powerfully Reflected, (from the Sea than from the Earth) (8.) The Situation of Places. For the Sun Acteth otherwise on Mountains and Mountainous places, then on Valleys and Plains, Moreover Mountains hinder the free access of the Rules of the Sun to the subject places, for to them the vapours of the Air are in some sort attracted, whence the Mountains change the Seasons of the Adjacent Places, as Heat, Rain and the like, for these would be otherwise in the adjacent places, if that the Mountains were absent. (9.) The winds, especially in General. So the Etesian winds Temperate and allay the Canicular Heat. A General wind in the Pacifick Sea especially the Subsolan winds in Brasilia, render the Heat Temperate when in Africa, which is Occidental, the Heat is vehement because the Places feel not so general a wind. The Northern winds are Cold and Dry, the Southern warm and moist in our Places. Hence the winds cause difference in weather. (10.) Clouds Rain and Fogs adde unto and Diminish light and Heat. I suppose there may be many causes of this variety in light and heat, &c. which is observed in Divers places of the earth, as also in the same places, but yet in a Different time of season.

In the next place we are to Consider How the Seasons of the year ought to be defined? viz. Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter. This Question comprehends two Difficulties: First, whether these Seasons ought to be defined from the entrance of the Sun and his Ray in certain Signs of the Ecliptick and Zodiack, for to Astronomers and Astrologers commonly do, saying that That is the Spring whilst the Sun moveth from the first degree of Aries, to the first degree of Cancer. That is Summer whilst the Sun moveth from the first point of Cancer to the first of Libra, That is Autumn whilst the Sun moveth from the first of Libra, to the first of Capricorn: and that is Winter whilst the Sun moveth from the first degree of Capricorn to the first scruple of Aries. Now it is manifest that these definitions are not General, and agreeable to all places, because they are only of Force in the Northern parts of the world (Scituated from the Æquator to the Pole Artick) and not in the Southern: so that for these Definitions the same Persons bring Definitions contrary to the former, saying that in those places, the Spring begins from the first degree of Libra, proceeding to the first point of Capricorn, The Summer from the first of Capricorn to the first of Aries, The Autumn from the first of Aries to the first of Cancer, and the Winter from the first of Cancer to the first of Libra. But from thence it would follow that those Seasons cannot possibly be defined, which is False, and Generals ought to be defin'd by Generalls. Secondly, Definitions so made cannot have place in the Places of the Torrid-Zone, for when the Sun passes through the vertex of those Places, then every one will at the same time confess that there ought to be Summer, except some other Cause obstructed in Respect of the Celestial cause: and so in Places Scituated in the Equator, the Spring or Summer ought not to be in the entrance of the Sun into the first degree of Aries and Libra but rather the Summer; Because then he passes through the vertex of those Places, and Causes great Heat, except some other Causes hinders. Neither can the Summer be-

Translated unto the first degree of Cancer or Capricorn. The Example holdeth concerning Places situated between the Equator and the Tropicks, Because the Sun passeth through their Zenith's, before that he draweth near to the first degree of Cancer or Capricorn, and therefore first causeth the Summer there: For we must know that these Definitions may be true, yet seeing, by the common Notions of all Nations, they define the Summers by Heat, and the Winter by Cold, or an exceeding a lesser degree of Heat, and so the Definitions ought to be made, that they may deviate as little as may be from those Notions, and in no sort be contrary to them.

The same Difficulty is concerning the Spring and Autumn of the Places of the Torrid Zone, yet they do not seem to have Place here, especially in Places which lie in the Equator.

The second Difficulty for which this Question is proposed is this, whether the Seasons are to be defined, from the very degree of Heat and Cold, viz. the Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter, or from the Accesse or Recesse of the Sun. For the Common Notions of the Men of Europe, which they form concerning those Seasons, or in which they do conceive them, comprehendeth both. Although they have more Respect to Heat than Cold. But Astronomers are more attentive to the Accesse and Recesse or Entrance of the Sun into certain Signs of the Zodiack, as before Intimated.

Moreover 'tis observed in Many Places of the Torrid Zone that those Seasons answer not the Accesse and Recesse of the Sun, but that contrary to the Celestial Motion of the Sun they are ryed by a Winter when they should have Summer, and Summer when they should have Winter, &c.
